

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

TO OLD DAN CHAUCER.

Maypole dance and Whitsun ale, Sports of peasants in the dale, Harvest mirth and junketting, Fireside play and kiss-in-ring, Ancient fun and wit and ease,-Gone are one and all of these; All the pleasant pastime planned In the green old Mother-land: Gone are these and gone the time Of the breezy English rhyme, Sung to make men glad and wise By great Bards with twinkling eyes: Gone the tale and gone the song Sound as nut-brown ale and strong, Freshening the sultry sense Out of idle impotence,

Sowing features dull or bright With deep dimples of delight!

Thro' the Mother-land I went, Seeking these, half indolent: Up and down, I saw them not: Only found them, half-forgot, Buried in long-darken'd nooks With thy barrels of old books, Where the light and love and mirth Of the morning days of earth Sleeps, like light of sunken suns Brooding deep in cob-webb'd tuns ! Everywhere I found instead, Hanging her dejected head, Barbing shafts of bitter wit, The pale Modern Spirit sit-While her shadow, great as Gog's, Cast upon the island fogs, In the midst of all things dim Loom'd, gigantically grim.

Honest Chaucer, thee I greet In a verse with blithesome feet, And the' modern bards may stare, Crack a passing joke with Care! Take a merry song and true Fraught with inner meanings too! Goodman Dull may croak and scowl:-Leave him hooting to the ow!! Tight-laced Prudery may turn Angry back with eyes that burn, Reading on from page to page Scrofulous novels of the age! Fools may frown and humbugs rail, Not for them I tell the Tale: Not for them, but such as thee, Wise old English JOLLITY!

APPROACHING UTAH.—THE BOSS'S TALE.

PASSING THE RANCHE.

"GRRR!" shrieked the boss, with teeth clench'd tight,

Just as the lone ranche hove in sight,
And with a face of ghastly hue
He flogg'd the horses till they flew,
As if the devil were at their back,
Along the wild and stony track.
From side to side the waggon swung,
While to the quaking seat I clung.
Dogs bark'd; on each side of the pass
The cattle grazing on the grass
Raised heads and stared; and with a cry
Out the men rush'd as we roll'd by.

"Grrr!" shriek'd the boss; and o'er and o'er
He flogg'd the foaming steeds and swore;
Harder and harder grew his face
As by the ranche we swept apace,
And faced the hill, and past the pond,
And gallop'd up the height beyond,
Nor tighten'd rein till field and farm
Were hidden by the mountain's arm
A mile behind; when, hot and spent,
The horses paused on the ascent,
And mopping from his brow the sweat,
The boy glanced round with teeth still set,
And panting, with his eyes on me,
Smil'd with a look of savage glee.

Joe Wilson is the boss's name,
A Western boy well known to fame.
He goes about the dangerous land
His life for ever in his hand;

Has lost three fingers in a fray,
Has scalp'd his Indian too they say;
Between the white man and the red
Four times he hath been left for dead;
Can drink, and swear, and laugh, and brawl,
And keeps his big heart thro' it all
Tender for babes and women.

He

Turned, smiled, and nodded savagely;
Then, with a dark look in his eyes
In answer to my dumb surprise,
Pointed with jerk of the whip's heft
Back to the place that we had left,
And cried aloud,

"I guess you think
I'm mad, or vicious, or in drink.
But theer you're wrong. I never pass
The ranche down theer and bit of grass,
I never pass 'em, night nor day,
But the fit takes me jest that way!

The hosses know as well as me
What's coming, miles afore we see
The dern'd old corner of a place,
And they git ready for the race!
Lord! if I didn't lash and sweer,
And ease my rage out passing theer,
Guess I should go clean mad, that's all.
And thet's the reason why I call
This turn of road where I am took Jest Old Nick's Gallop!"

Then his look
Grew more subdued yet darker still;
And as the horses up the hill
With loosen'd rein toil'd slowly, he Went on in half soliloquy,
Indifferent almost if I heard,
And grimly grinding out each word.

JOE WILSON GOES A-COURTING.

"There was a time, and no mistake,
When thet same ranche down in the brake
Was pleasanter a heap to me
Than any sight on land or sea.
The hosses knew it like their master,
Smelt it miles orf, and spank'd the faster!
Ay, bent to reach thet very spot,
Flew till they halted steaming hot
Sharp opposite the door, among
The chicks and children old and young;
And down I'd jump, and all the go
Was 'Fortune, boss!' and 'Welcome, Joe!'
And Cissy with her shining face,
Tho' she was missus of the place,

Stood larfing, hands upon her hips; And when upon her rosy lips I put my mouth and gave her one, She'd cuff me, and enjy the fun! She was a widow young and tight, Her chap had died in a free fight, And here she lived, and round her had Two chicks, three brothers, and her dad, All making money fast as hay, And doing better every day. Waal! guess tho' I was peart and swift, Spooning was never much my gift; But Cissy was a gal so sweet, So fresh, so spicy, and so neat, It put your wits all out o' place, Only to star' into her face. Skin whiter than a new-laid egg, Lips full of juice, and sech a leg! A smell about her, morn and e'en, Like fresh-bleach'd linen on a green:

And from her hand when she took mine, The warmth ran up like sherry wine; And if in liquor I made free To pull her larfing on my knee, Why, there she'd sit, and feel so nice, Her heer all scent, her breath all spice! See! women hate, both young and old, A chap that's over shy and cold, And fire of all sorts kitches quick, And Cissy seem'd to feel full slick The same fond feelings, and at last Grew kinder every time I passed; And all her face, from eyes to chin, Said 'Bravo, Joe! You're safe to win!' And tho' we didn't fix, d'ye see, In downright words that it should be, Ciss and her fam'ly understood That she and me would jine for good. Guess I was like a thirsty boss Dead beat for days, who comes across

A fresh clear beck, and on the brink Scoops out his shaky hand to drink; Or like a gal or boy of three, With eyes upon a pippin-tree; Or like some Injin cuss who sees A bottle of rum among the trees, And by the bit of smouldering log, Where squatters camp'd and took their grog The night afore. Waal!" (here he ground His teeth again with savage sound) "Waal, stranger, fancy, jest for fun, The feelings of the thirsty one, If, jest as he scoop'd out his hand, The water turn'd to dust and sand! Or fancy how the lad would scream To see thet fruit-tree jest a dream! Or guess how thet poor Injin cuss, Would dance and swear, and screech and fuss, If when he'd drawn the cork and tried To get a gulp of rum inside,

'Twarn't anything in thet theer style,
But physic stuff or stinking ile!
Ah! you've a notion now, I guess,
Of how all ended in a mess,
And how when I was putting in
My biggest card and thought to win,
The Old One taught her how to cheat,
And yer I found myself, clean beat!"

m.

SAINT AND, DISCIPLE.

Joe Wilson paused, and gazed straight down,
With gritting teeth and bitter frown,
And not till I entreated him
Did he continue,—fierce and grim,
With knitted brow and teeth clench'd tight.

"Along this way one summer night,
Jest as I meant to take the prize,
Passed an Apostle—dern his eyes!
On his old pony, gravel-eyed,
His legs a-dangling down each side,
With twinkling eyes and wheedling smile,
Grinning beneath his broad-brimm'd tile,

With heer all scent and shaven face, He came a-trotting to the place. My luck was bad, I wasn't near, But busy many a mile from yer; And what I tell was told to me By them as were at hand to see. 'Twarn't every day, I reckon, they Saw an Apostle pass their way! And Cissy, being kind o' soft, And empty in the upper loft, Was full of downright joy and pride To hev thet saint at her fireside— One of the seventy they call The holiest holy-dern 'em all! O he was 'cute and no mistake, Deep as Salt Lake, and wide awake! Theer at the ranche three days he stayed, And well he knew his lying trade. 'Twarn't long afore he heard full free About her larks and thet with me,

And how 'twas quite the fam'ly plan To hev me for her second man. At fust thet old Apostle said Little, but only shook his head; But you may bet he'd no intent To let things go as things had went. Three nights he stayed, and every night He squeezed her hand a bit more tight; And every night he didn't miss To give a loving kiss to Ciss; And the' his fust was on her brow, He ended with her mouth, somehow. O, but he was a knowing one, The Apostle Hiram Higginson! Grey as a badger's was his heer, His age was over sixty year (Her grandfather was little older), So short, his head just touch'd her shoulder; His face all grease, his voice all puff, His eyes two currants stuck in duff;-

Call thet a man!—then look at me! Thretty year old and six foot three, Afear'd o' nothing morn nor night, The man don't walk I wouldn't fight! Women is women! Thet's their style-Talk reason to them and they'll bile; But baste 'em soft as any pigeon, With lies and rubbish and religion; Don't talk of flesh and blood and feeling, But Holy Ghost and blessed healing; Don't name things in too plain a way, Look a heap warmer than you say, Make 'em believe they're serving true The Holy Spirit and not you, Prove all the world but you's damnation, And call your kisses jest salvation; Do this, and press 'em on the sly, You're safe to win 'em. Jest you try!

[&]quot;Fust thing I heerd of all this game, One night when to the ranche I came,

Jump'd down, ran in, saw Cissy theer, And thought her kind o' cool and queer; For when I caught her with a kiss, 'Twarn't that she took the thing amiss, But kept stone cool and gev a sigh, And wiped her mouth upon the sly On her white milkin'-apron. 'Waal,' Says I, 'you're out o' sorts, my gel!' And with a squeamish smile for me, Like folks hev when they're sick at sea, Says she, 'O, Joseph, ere too late, I am awaken'd to my state-How pleasant and how sweet it is To be in sech a state of bliss!' I stared and gaped, and turned to Jim Her brother, and cried out to him, 'Hullo, mate, what's the matter here? What's come to Cissy? Is she queer?' Jim gev a grin and answered 'Yes, A trifle out o' sorts, I guess.'

But Cissy here spoke up and said, 'It ain't my stomach, nor my head, It ain't my flesh, it ain't my skin, It's holy spirits here within!' 'Waal,' says I, meanin' to be kind, 'I must be off, for I'm behind; But next time that I pass this way We'll fix ourselves without delay. I know what your complaint is, Ciss, I've seen the same in many a miss, Keep up your spirits, thet's your plan, You're lonely here without a man, And you shall hev as good a one As e'er druv hoss beneath the sun!' At that I buss'd her with a smack, Turn'd out, jump'd up, and took the track, And larfing druv along the pass.

"Theer! Guess I was as green as grass!"

THE BOOK OF MORMON.

"'Twas jest a week after thet day
When down I druv again this way.
My heart was light; and 'neath the box
I'd got a shawl and two fine frocks
For Cissy. On in spanking style
The hosses went mile arter mile;
The sun was blazing golden bright,
The sunflowers burning in the light,
The cattle in the golden gleer
Wading for coolness everywheer
Among the shinin' ponds, with flies
As thick as pepper round their eyes
And on their heads. See! as I went
Whistling like mad and waal content,

Altho' 'twas broad bright day all round,
A cock crow'd, and I thought the sound
Seem'd pleasant. Twice or thrice he crow'd,

And then up to the ranche I rode.

Since then I've often heerd folk say

When a cock crows in open day

It's a bad sign, announcin' clear

Black luck or death to those thet hear.

"When I drew up, all things were still.

I saw the boys far up the hill
Tossin' the hay; but at the door
No Cissy stood as oft afore.
No, not a soul there, left nor right,
Her very chicks were out o' sight.
So down I jump'd, and 'Ciss!' I cried,
But not a sign of her outside.
With thet into the house I ran,
But found no sight of gel or man—

All empty. Thinks I, 'this is queer!'—
Look'd in the dairy—no one theer;
Then loiter'd round the kitchen track
Into the orchard at the back:
Under the fruit-trees' shade I pass'd, . . .
Thro' the green bushes, . . . and at last
Found, as the furthest path I trode,
The gel I wanted. Ye . . . s! by ——!

"The gel I wanted—ay, I found More than I wanted, you'll be bound! Theer, seated on a wooden cheer, With bows and ribbons in her heer, Her hat a-swinging on a twig Close by, sat Ciss in her best rig, And at her feet that knowing one, The Apostle Hiram Higginson! They were too keen to notice me, So I held back behind a tree

And watch'd 'em. Never night nor day Did I see Cissy look so gay, Her eyes all sparkling blue and bright, Her face all sanctified delight. She hed her gown tuck'd up to show Embrider'd petticoat below, And jest a glimpse, below the white, Of dainty leg in stocking tight With crimson clocks; and on her knee She held an open book, which he, Thet dern'd Apostle at her feet, With her low milking stool for seat, Was reading out all clear and pat, Keeping the place with finger fat; Creeping more close to book and letter To feel the warmth of his text better, His crimson face like a cock's head With his emotion as he read, And now and then his eyes he'd close Jest like a cock does when he crows!

Above the heads of thet strange two
The shade was deep, the sky was blue,
The place was full of warmth and smell,
All round the fruit and fruit-leaves fell,
And that Saint's voice, when all was still,

Was like the groanin' of a mill.

"At last he stops for lack of wind,
And smiled with sarcy double-chinn'd
Fat face at Cissy, while she cried,
Rocking herself from side to side,
'O Bishop, them are words of bliss!'
And then he gev a long fat kiss
On her warm hand, and edged his stool
Still closer. Could a man keep cool
And see it? Trembling thro' and thro'
I walked right up to thet theer two,
And caught the dern'd old lump of duff
Jest by the breeches and the scruff,

And chuck'd him off, and with one kick Sent his stool arter him right slick-While Cissy scream'd with frighten'd face, 'Spare him! O spare that man of grace!'

"'Spare him!' I cried, and gev a shout, 'What's this yer shine you air about— What cuss is this that I jest see With that big book upon your knee, Cuddling up close and making sham To read a heap of holy flam?' Then Cissy clasp'd her hands, and said, While that dern'd Saint sat fierce and red.

Mopping his brow with a black frown, And squatting where I chuck'd him down, 'Joe Wilson, stay your hand so bold, Come not a wolf into the fold: Forbear to touch that holy one-The Apostle Hiram Higginson.'

'Touch him,' said I, 'for half a pin
I'd flay and quarter him and skin!
Waal may he look so white and skeer'd,
For of his doings I have heerd;
Five wives he hev already done,
And him—not half the man for one!'

"And then I stoop'd and took a peep
At what they'd studied at so deep,
And read, for I can read a bit,
'The Book of Mormon'—what was writ
By the first Saint of all the lot,
Mad Joseph, him the Yankees shot.
'What's the contents of this yer book?'
Says I, and fixed her with a look.
'O Joe,' she answered, 'read aright,
It is a book of blessed light—
Thet holy man expounds it clear;
Edification great is theer!'

Then, for my blood was up, I took
One kick at thet infernal book,
And tho' the Apostle guv a cry,
Into the well I made it fly,
And turning to the Apostle cried,
'Tho' thet theer Scriptur' is your guide,
You'd best depart without delay,
Afore you sink in the same way!
And sure as fate you'll wet your skin
If you come courting yer agin!'

"At first he stared and puff'd and blew,—
'Git out!' I cried, and off he flew,
And not till he was out o' reach
Shook his fat fist and found his speech.
I turned to Cissy. 'Cicely Dunn,'
Ses I, 'is this a bit of fun
Or eernest?' Reckon 'twas a sight
To see the way she stood upright,

Rolled her blue eyes up, tried to speak, Made fust a giggle, then a squeak, And said half crying, 'I despise Your wicked calumnies and lies, And what you would insinuate Won't move me from my blessed state. Now I perceive in time, thank hiven, You are a man to anger given, Jealous and vi'lent. Go away! And when you recollect this day, And those bad words you've said to me, Blush if you kin. Tehee! tehee!' And then she sobbed, and in her cheer Fell crying: so I felt quite queer, And stood like a dern'd fool, and star'd Watchin' the pump a-going hard; And then at last, I couldn't stand The sight no more, but slipt my hand Sharp into hers, and said quite kind, 'Say no more, Cissy—never mind;

I know how queer you women's ways is-Let the Apostle go to blazes!' Now thet was plain and fair. With this I would have put my arm round Ciss. But Lord! you should have seen her face, When I attempted to embrace; Sprang to her feet and gev a cry, Her back up like a cat's, her eye All blazing, and cried fierce and clear, 'You villain, touch me if you deer!' And jest then in the distance, fur From danger, a voice echoed her,— The dern'd Apostle's, from some place Where he had hid his ugly face,-Crying out faint and thick and clear, 'Yes, villain, touch her if you deer!'

So riled I was, to be so beat, I could have struck her to my feet. I didn't tho', tho' sore beset— I never struck a woman yet.

"But off I walked right up the pass,
And found the men among the grass,
And when I came in sight said flat,
'What's this yer game Cissy is at?
She's thrown me off, and taken pity
On an Apostle from the City.
Five wives already, too, has he—
Poor cussed things as e'er I see—
Does she mean mischief or a lark?'
Waal, all the men at thet look'd dark,
And scratch'd their heads and seem'd in doubt.

At last her brother Jim spoke out—
'Joe, don't blame us—by George, it's true,
We're chawed by this as much as you;
We've done our best and tried and tried,
But Ciss is off her head with pride.

And all her thoughts, both night and day, Are with the Apostles fur away. "O that I were in bliss with them Theer in the new Jerusalem!" She says; and when we laugh and sneer, Ses we're jest raging wolves down here. She's a bit dull at home d'ye see, Allays liked heaps of company, And now the foolish critter paints A life of larks among the Saints. We've done our best, don't hev a doubt, To keep the old Apostle out: We've trained the dogs to seize and bite him, We've got up ghosts at night to fright him, Doctor'd his hoss and so upset him, Put tickle-grass in bed to fret him, Jalap'd his beer and snuffed his tea too, Gunpowder in his pipe put free too; A dozen times we've well-nigh kill'd him, We've skeer'd him, shaken him, and spill'd him:

In fact, done all we deer,' said Jim,
'Against a powerful man like him;
But all in vain we've hed our sport;
Jest like a cat that can't be hurt,
With nine good lives if he hev one,
Is this same Hiram Higginson!'"

JOE ENDS HIS STORY.—FIRST GLIMPSE OF UTAH.

Joe paused, for down the mountain's brow His hastening horses trotted now. Into a canyon green and bright, Thro' which a beck was sparkling bright, Quickly we wound. Joe Wilson lit His cutty pipe, and suck'd at it In silence grim; and when it drew, Puff after puff of smoke he blew, With blank eye fixed on vacancy. At last he turned again to me, And spoke with bitter indignation The epilogue of his narration.

"Waal, stranger, guess my story's told, The Apostle beat and I was bowl'd.

Reckon I might have won if I Had allays been at hand to try; But I was busy out of sight, And he was theer, morn, noon, and night, Playing his cards, and waal it weer For him I never caught him theer. To cut the story short, I guess He got the Prophet to say 'yes,' And Cissy without much ado Gev her consent to hev him too; And one fine morning off they druv To what he called the Abode of Love-A dern'd old place, it seems to me, Jest like a dove-box on a tree, Where every lonesome woman-soul Sits shivering in her own hole, And on the outside, free to choose, The old cock-pigeon struts and coos. I've heard from many a one that Ciss Has found her blunder out by this,

And she'd prefer for company A brisk young chap, tho' poor, like me, Than the sixth part of him she's won-The holy Hiram Higginson. I've got a peep at her since then, When she's crawl'd out of thet theer den, But she's so pale and thin and tame I shouldn't know her for the same. No flesh to pinch upon her cheek, Her legs gone thin, no voice to speak, Dabby and crush'd, and sad and flabby, Sucking a wretched squeaking baby; And all the fun and all the light Gone from her face, and left it white. Her cheek 'll take a feeble flush, But hesn't blood enough to blush; Tries to seem modest, peart and sly, And brighten up if I go by, But from the corner of her eyes Peeps at me quietly, and sighs.

Reckon her luck has been a stinger! She'd bolt if I held up my finger; But tho' I'm rough, and wild, and free, Take a Saint's leavings—no not me! You've heerd of Vampires—them that rise At dead o' night with flaming eyes, And into women's beds 'll creep To suck their blood when they're asleep. I guess these Saints are jest the same, Sucking the life out is their game; And tho' it ain't in the broad sun Or in the open streets it's done, There ain't a woman they clap eyes on Their teeth don't touch, their touch don't pison; Thet's their dern'd way in this yer spot— Grrr! git along, hoss! dern you, trot!"

From pool to pool the wild beck sped Beside us, dwindled to a thread.

With mellow verdure fringed around It sang along with summer sound: Here gliding into a green glade; Here darting from a nest of shade With sudden sparkle and quick cry, As glad again to meet the sky; Here whirling off with eager will And quickening tread to turn a mill; Then stealing from the busy place With duskier depths and wearier pace. In the blue void above the beck Sailed with us, dwindled to a speck, The hen-hawk; and from pools below The blue-wing'd heron oft rose slow, And upward pass'd with measured beat Of wing to seek some new retreat. Blue was the heaven and darkly bright, Suffused with throbbing golden light, And in the burning Indian ray A million insects hummed at play.

Soon, by the margin of the stream,
We passed a driver with his team
Bound for the City; then a hound
Afar off made a dreamy sound;
And suddenly the sultry track
And sweeping round a curve, behold!
We came into the yellow gold
Of perfect sunlight on the plain;
And Joe, abruptly drawing rein,
Said quick and sharp, shading his eyes
With sunburnt hand, "See, theer it lies—

Theer's Sodom!"

And even as he cried,

The mighty Valley we descried, Burning below us in one ray Of liquid light that summer day; And far away, 'mid peaceful gleams
Of flocks and herds and glistering streams,
Rose, fair as aught that fancy paints,
The wondrous City of the Saints!

O Saints that shine around the heavenly Seat! What heaven is this that opens at my feet? What flocks are these that thro' the golden gleam Stray on by freckled fields and shining stream? What glittering roofs and white kiosks are these, Up-peeping from the shade of emerald trees? Whose City is this that rises on the sight Fair and fantastic as a city of light Seen in the sunset? What is yonder sea Opening beyond the City cool and free, Large, deep, and luminous, looming thro' the heat, And lying at the darkly shadowed feet Of the Sierras, which with jagged line Burning to amber in the light divine. Close in the Valley of the happy land, With heights as barren as a dead man's hand?

O pilgrim, halt! O wandering heart, give praise! Behold the City of these Latter Days! Here may'st thou leave thy load and be forgiven, And in anticipation taste of Heaven!

AMONG THE PASTURES.—SUMMER EVENING DIALOGUE.

BISHOP PETE. BISHOP JOSS. STRANGER.

BISHOP PETE.

- AH, things down here, as you observe, are getting more pernicious,
- And Brigham's losing all his nerve, altho' the fix is vicious.
- Jest as we've rear'd a prosperous place and fill'd our holy quivers,
- The Yankee comes with dern'd long face to give us all the shivers!

- And on his jaws a wicked grin prognosticates disaster,
- And, jest as sure as sin is sin, he means to be the master.
- "Pack up your traps," I hear him cry, "for here there's no remainin',"
- And winks with his malicious eye, and progues us out of Canaan.

BISHOP Joss.

- It ain't the Yankee that I fear, the neighbour nor the stranger—
- No, no, it's closer home, it's here, that I perceive the danger.
- The wheels of State has gather'd rust, the helm wants hands to guide it,
- 'Tain't from without the biler'll bust, but 'cause of steam inside it:
- Yet if we went falootin' less, and made less noise and flurry,

- It isn't Jonathan, I guess, would hurt us in a hurry.
- But there's sedition east and west, and secret revolution,
- There's canker in the social breast, rot in the constitution;
- And over half of us, at least, are plunged in mad vexation,
- Forgetting how our race increased, our very creed's foundation.
- What's our religion's strength and force, its substance, and its story?

STRANGER.

Polygamy, my friend, of course! the law of love and glory!

BISHOP PETE.

Stranger, I'm with you there, indeed:—it's been the best of nusses;

- Polygamy is to our creed what meat and drink to us is.
- Destroy that notion any day, and all the rest is brittle,
- And Mormondom dies clean away like one in want of vittle.
- It's meat and drink, it's life, it's power! to heaven its breath doth win us!
- It warms our vitals every hour! it's Holy Ghost within us!
- Jest lay that notion on the shelf, and all life's springs are frozen!
- I've half-a-dozen wives myself, and wish I had a dozen!

BISHOP Joss.

- If all the Elders of the State like you were sound and holy,
- P. Shufflebotham, guess our fate were far less melancholy.

- You air a man of blessed toil, far-shining and discerning,
- A heavenly lamp well trimm'd with oil, upon the altar burning.
- And yet for every one of us with equal resolution,
- There's twenty samples of the Cuss, as mean as Brother Clewson.

STRANGER.

St. Abe?

BISHOP Joss.

- Yes, him—the snivelling sneak—his very name provokes me,—
- Altho' my temper's milky-meek, he sours me and he chokes me.
- To see him going up and down with those meek lips asunder,
- Jest like a man about to drown, with lead to sink him under,

- His grey hair on his shoulders shed, one leg than t'other shorter,
- No end of cuteness in his head, and him—as weak as water!

BISHOP PETE.

- And yet how well I can recall the time when Abe was younger—
- Why not a chap among us all went for the notion stronger.
- When to the mother-country he was sent to wake the sinning,
- He shipp'd young lambs across the sea by flocks—he was so winning;
- O but he had a lively style, describing saintly blisses!
- He made the spirit pant and smile, and seek seraphic kisses!
- How the bright raptures of the Saint fresh lustre seemed to borrow,

- While black and awful he did paint the one-wived sinner's sorrow!
- Each woman longed to be his bride, and by his side to slumber—
- "The more the blesseder!" he cried, still adding to the number.

STRANGER.

How did the gentleman contrive to change his skin so quickly?

BISHOP Joss.

- The holy Spirit couldn't thrive because the Flesh was sickly!
- Tho' day by day he did increase his flock, his soul was shallow,
- His brains were only candle-grease, and wasted down like tallow.
- He stoop'd a mighty heap too much, and let his household rule him,

- The weakness of the man was such that any face could fool him.
- Aye! made his presence cheap, no doubt, and so contempt grew quicker,—
- Not measuring his notice out in smallish drams, like liquor.
- His house became a troublous house, with mischief overbrimmin',
- And he went creeping like a mouse among the cats of women.
- Ah, womenfolk are hard to rule, their tricks is most surprising,
- It's only a dern'd spoony fool goes sentimentalising!
- But give 'em now and then a bit of notice and a present,
- And lor, they're just like doves, that sit on one green branch, all pleasant!
- But Abe's love was a queer complaint, a sort of tertian fever,

- Each case he cured of thought the Saint a thorough-paced deceiver;
- And soon he found, he did indeed, with all their whims to nourish,
- That Mormonism ain't a creed where fleshly follies flourish.

BISHOP PETE.

- Ah, right you air! A creed it is demandin' iron mettle!
- A will that quells, as soon as riz, the biling of the kettle!
- With wary eye, with manner deep, a spirit overbrimmin'.
- Like to a shepherd mong his sheep, the Saint is mong his women;
- And unto him they do uplift their eyes in awe and wonder:
- His notice is a blessed gift, his anger is blue thunder.

- No n'ises vex the holy place where dwell those blessed parties;
- Each missus shineth in her place, and blithe and meek her heart is!
- They sow, they spin, they darn, they hem, their blessed babes they handle,
- The Devil never comes to them, lit by that holy candle!
- When in their midst serenely walks their Master and their Mentor.
- They're hush'd, as when the Prophet stalks down holy church's centre!
- They touch his robe, they do not move, those blessed wives and mothers.
- And, when on one he shineth love, no envy fills the others:
- They know his perfect saintliness, and honour his affection—
- And, if they did object, I guess he'd settle that objection!

BISHOP JOSS.

- It ain't a passionate flat like Abe can manage things in your way!
- They teased that most etarnal babe, till things were in a poor way.
- I used to watch his thorny bed, and bust my sides with laughter.
- Once give a female hoss her head you'll never stop her after.
- It's one thing getting seal'd, and he was mighty fond of Sealing,
- He'd all the human heat, d'ye see, without the saintly feeling.
- His were the wildest set of gals that ever drove man silly,
- Each full of freaks and fal-de-lals, as frisky as a filly.
- One pull'd this way, and t'other that, and made his life a mockery,

- They'd all the feelings of a cat scampaging 'mong the crockery.
- I saw Abe growing pale and thin, and well I knew what ail'd him—
- The skunk went stealing out and in, and all his spirit failed him;
- And tho' the tanning-yard paid well, and he was money-making,
- His saintly home was hot as Hell, and, ah! how he was baking!
- Why, now and then at evening-time, when his day's work was over,
- Up this here hill he used to climb and squat among the clover,
- And with his fishy eye he'd glare across the Rocky Mountains,
- And wish he was away up there, among the heavenly fountains!
- I had an aunt, Tabitha Brooks, a virgin under fifty,

- She warn't so much for pretty looks, but she was wise and thrifty:
- She'd seen the vanities of life, was good at 'counts and brewin'—
- Thinks I, "Here's just the sort of Wife to save poor Abe from ruin."
- So, after fooling many a week, and showing him she loved him,
- And seeing he was shy to speak, whatever feelings moved him,
- At last I took her by the hand, and led her to him straightway,
- One day when we could see him stand jest close unto the gateway.
- My words were to the p'int and brief: says I, "My brother Clewson,
- There'll be an end to all your grief, if you've got resolution.
- Where shall you find a house that thrives without a head that's ruling?

- Here is the paragon of wives to teach those others schooling!
- She'll be to you not only wife, but careful as a mother—
- A little property for life is hers; you'll share it, brother.
- I've seen the question morn and eve within your eyes unspoken,
- You're slow and nervous I perceive, but now—the ice is broken.
- Here is a guardian and a guide to bless a man and grace him;"
- And then I to Tabitha cried, "Go in, old galembrace him!"

STRANGER.

Why, that was acting fresh and fair;—but Abe, was he as hearty?

BISHOP Joss.

We...ll! Abe was never anywhere against a female party!

But Tabby was a tender one, she collar'd him and kissed him.

And round his neck she blushing hung, part holding, part caressing,

And murmur'd, with a faltering tongue, "O, Abe, I'll be a blessing."

And home they walk'd one morning, he just reaching to her shoulders,

And sneaking at her skirt, while she stared straight at all beholders.

Swinging her bonnet by the strings, and setting her lips tighter,

In at his door the old gal springs, her grim eyes growing brighter;

And, Lord! there was the devil to pay, and lightning and blue thunder,

For she was going to have her way, and hold the vixens under:

- They would have torn old Abe to bits, they were so anger-bitten,
- But Tabby saved him from their fits, as a cat saves her kitten.

STRANGER.

- It seems your patriarchal life has got its botherations,
- And leads to much domestic strife and infinite vexations!
- But when the ladies couldn't lodge in peace one house-roof under,
- I thought that 'twas the saintly dodge to give them homes asunder?

BISHOP Joss.

- And you thought right; it is a plan by many here affected—
- Never by me—I ain't the man—I'll have my will respected.

BISHOP JOSS'S OWN DOMESTIC SYSTEM. 57

- If all the women of my house can't fondly pull together,
- And each as meek as any mouse, look out for stormy weather!—
- No, no, I don't approve at all of humouring my women,
- And building lots of boxes small for each one to grow grim in.
- I teach them jealousy's a sin, and solitude's just bearish,
- They nuss each other lying-in, each other's babes they cherish;
- It is a family jubilee, and not a selfish pleasure,
- Whenever one presents to me another infant treasure!
- All ekal, all respected, each with tokens of affection,
- They dwell together, soft of speech, beneath their lord's protection;

- And if by any chance I mark a spark of shindy raising,
- I set my heel upon that spark,—before the house gets blazing!
- Now that's what Clewson should have done, but couldn't, thro' his folly,
- For even when Tabby's help was won, he wasn't much more jolly.
- Altho' she stopt the household fuss, and husht the awful riot,
- The old contrairy stupid Cuss could not enj'y the quiet.
- His house was peaceful as a church, all solemn, still, and saintly;
- And yet he'd tremble at the porch, and look about him faintly;
- And tho' the place was all his own, with hat in hand he'd enter,
- Like one thro' public buildings shown, soft treading down the centre.

- Still, things were better than before, though somewhat trouble-laden,
- When one fine day unto his door there came a Yankee maiden.
- "Is Brother Clewson in?" she says; and when she saw and knew him,
- The stranger gal to his amaze scream'd out and clung unto him.
- Then in a voice all thick and wild, exclaim'd that gal unlucky,
- "O Sir, I'm Jason Jones's child—he's dead—stabb'd in Kentucky!
- And father's gone, and O I've come to you across the mountains."
- And then the little one was dumb, and Abe's eyes gushed like fountains. . . .
- He took that gal into his place, and kept her as his daughter—
- Ah, mischief to her wheedling face and the bad wind that brought her!

BISHOP PETE.

- I knew that Jones:—used to faloot about Emancipation—
- It made your very toe-nails shoot to hear his declamation.
- And when he'd made all bosoms swell with wonder at his vigour,
- He'd get so drunk he couldn't tell a white man from a nigger!
- Was six foot high, thin, grim, and pale,—his troubles can't be spoken—
- Tarred, feathered, ridden on a rail, left beaten, bruised, and broken;
- But nothing made his tongue keep still, or stopt his games improper,
- Till, after many an awkward spill, he came the final cropper.

BISHOP JOSS.

... That gal was fourteen years of age, and sly with all her meekness:

- It put the fam'ly in a rage, for well they knew Abe's weakness.
- But Abe (a cuss, as I have said, that any fool might sit on)
- Was stubborn as an ass's head, when once he took the fit on!
- And, once he fixed the gal to take, in spite of their vexation,
- Not all the rows on earth would break his firm determination.
- He took the naggings as they came, he bowed his head quite quiet,
- Still mild he was and sad and tame, and ate the peppery diet;
- But tho' he seemed so crush'd to be, when this or that one blew up,
- He stuck to Jones's Legacy and school'd her till she grew up.
- Well! there! the thing was said and done, and so far who could blame him?

- But O he was a crafty one, and sorrow couldn't shame him!
- That gal grew up, and at eighteen was prettier far and neater—
- There were not many to be seen about these parts to beat her;
- Peart, brisk, bright-eyed, all trim and tight, like kittens fond of playing,
- A most uncommon pleasant sight at pic-nic or at praying.
- Then it became, as you'll infer, a simple public duty,
- To cherish and look after her, considering her beauty;
- And several Saints most great and blest now offer'd their protection,
- And I myself among the rest felt something of affection.
- But O the selfishness of Abe, all things it beats and passes!

SISTER ANNE HATH MANY WOOERS. 63

- As greedy as a two-year babe a-grasping at molasses!
- When once those Shepherds of the flock began to smile and beckon,
- He screamed like any fighting cock, and raised his comb, I reckon!
- First one was floor'd, then number two, she wouldn't look at any;
- Then my turn came, although I knew the maiden's faults were many.
- "My brother Abe," says I, "I come untoe your house at present
- To offer sister Anne a home which she will find most pleasant.
- You know I am a saintly man, and all my ways are lawful"—
- And in a minute he began abusing me most awful.
- "Begone," he said, "you're like the rest,—wolves, wolves with greedy clutches!

- Poor little lamb; but in my breast I'll shield her from your touches!"
- "Come, come," says I, "a gal can't stay a child like that for ever,
- You'll hev to seal the gal some day;" but Abe cried fiercely, "Never!"
- Says I, "Perhaps it's in your view yourself this lamb to gather?"
- And "If it is, what's that to you?" he cried; "but I'm her father!
- You get along, I know your line, it's crushing, bullying, wearing,
- You'll never seal a child of mine, so go, and don't stand staring!"
- This was the man once mild in phiz as any farthing candle—
- A hedgehog now, his quills all riz, whom no one dared to handle!
- But O I little guessed his deal, nor tried to circumvent it,

- I never thought he'd dare to seal another; but he meant it!
- Yes, managed Brigham on the sly, for fear his plans miscarried,
- And long before we'd time to cry, the two were sealed and married.

BISHOP PETE.

- Well, you've your consolation now—he's punished clean, I'm thinking,
- He's ten times deeper in the slough, up to his neck and sinking.
- There's vinegar in Abe's pale face enough to sour a barrel,
- Goes crawling up and down the place, neglecting his apparel,
- Seems to have lost all heart and soul, has fits of absence shocking—
- His home is like a rabbit's hole when weasels come a-knocking.

- And now and then, to put it plain, while falling daily sicker,
- I think he tries to float his pain by copious goes of liquor.

BISHOP Joss.

- Yes, that's the end of selfishness, it leads to long vexation—
- No man can pity Abe, I guess, who knows his situation;
- And, Stranger, if this man you meet, don't take him for a sample,
- Although he speaks you fair and sweet, he's set a vile example.
- Because you see him ill at ease, at home, and never hearty,
- Don't think these air the tokens, please, of a real saintly party!
- No, he's a failure, he's a sham, a scandal to our nation,

- Not fit to lead a single lamb, unworthy of his station;
- No! if you want a Saint to see, who rules lambs when he's got 'em,
- Just cock your weather-eye at me, or Brother Shufflebotham.
- We don't go croaking east and west, afraid of women's faces,
- We bless and we air truly blest in our domestic places;
- We air religious, holy men, happy our folds to gather,
- Each is a loyal citizen, also a husband—rather.
- But now with talk you're dry and hot, and weary with your ride here,
- Jest come and see my fam'ly lot,—they're waiting tea inside here.

WITHIN THE CITY .-- SAINT ABE AND THE SEVEN.

Sister Tabitha, thirty odd,
Rising up with a stare and a nod;
Sister Amelia, sleepy and mild,
Freckled, Dudu-ish, suckling a child;
Sister Fanny, pert and keen,
Sister Emily, solemn and lean,
Sister Mary, given to tears,
Sister Sarah, with wool in her ears;
All appearing like tapers wan
In the mellow sunlight of Sister Anne.

With a tremulous wave of his hand, the Saint Introduces the household quaint,

And sinks on a chair and looks around,
As the dresses rustle with snakish sound,
As curtsies are bobb'd, and eyes cast down
Some with a simper, some with a frown,
And Sister Anne, with a fluttering breast,
Stands trembling and peeping behind the rest.

Every face but one has been Pretty, perchance, at the age of eighteen,
Pert and pretty, and plump and bright;
But now their fairness is faded quite,
And every feature is fashion'd here
To a flabby smile, or a snappish sneer.
Before the stranger they each assume
A false fine flutter and feeble bloom,
And a little colour comes into the cheek
When the eyes meet mine, as I sit and speak;
But there they sit and look at me,
Almost withering visibly,

And languidly tremble and try to blow— Six pale roses all in a row!

Six? ah, yes; but at hand sits one, The seventh, still full of the light of the sun. Though her colour terribly comes and goes, Now white as a lily, now red as a rose, So sweet she is, and so full of light, That the rose seems soft, and the lily bright. Her large blue eyes, with a tender care, Steal to her husband unaware. And whenever he feels them he flushes red, And the trembling hand goes up to his head! Around those dove-like eyes appears A redness as of recent tears. Alone she sits in her youth's fresh bloom In a dark corner of the room, And folds her hands, and does not stir, And the others scarcely look at her,

THE STRANGER ESSAYETH SMALL TALK. 71

But crowding together, as if by plan, Draw further and further from Sister Anne.

I try to rattle along in chat,
Talking freely of this and that—
The crops, the weather, the mother-land,
Talk a baby could understand;
And the faded roses, faint and meek,
Open their languid lips to speak,
But in various sharps and flats, all low,
Give a lazy "yes" or a sleepy "no."
Yet now and then Tabitha speaks,
Snapping her answer with yellow cheeks,
And fixing the Saint who is sitting by
With the fish-like glare of her glittering eye,
Whenever the looks of the weary man
Stray to the corner of Sister Anne.

Like a fountain in a shady place
Is the gleam of the sadly shining face—

A fresh spring whither the soul might turn, When the road is rough, and the hot sands burn;

Like a fount, or a bird, or a blooming tree,
To a weary spirit is such as she!
And Brother Abe, from his easy chair,
Looks thither by stealth with an aching care,
And in spite of the dragons that guard the brink

Would stoop to the edge of the fount, I think, And drink! and drink!

"Drink: Stuff and fiddlesticks," you cry,
Matron reader with flashing eye:
"Isn't the thing completely his,
His wife, his mistress, whatever you please?
Look at her! Dragons and fountains! Absurd!"
Madam, I bow to every word;
But truth is truth, and cannot fail,
And this is quite a veracious tale.

More like a couple of lovers shy,
Who flush and flutter when folk are by,
Were man and wife, or (in another
And holier parlance) sister and brother.
As a man of the world I noticed it,
And it made me speculate a bit,
For the situation was to my mind
A phenomenon of a curious kind—
A person in love with his wife, 'twas clear,
But afraid, when another soul was near,
Of showing his feelings in any way
Because—there would be the Devil to pay!

The Saint has been a handsome fellow, Clear-eyed, fresh-skinn'd, if a trifle yellow, And his face though somewhat soft and plain Ends in a towering mass of brain.

His locks, though still an abundant crop, Are thinning a little at the top, But you only notice here and there
The straggling gleam of a silver hair.
A man by nature rolled round and short,
Meant for the Merry Andrew's sport,
But sober'd down by the wear and tear
Of business troubles and household care:
Quiet, reticent, gentle, kind,
Of amorous heart and extensive mind,
A Saint devoid of saintly sham,
Is little Brother Abraham.

Brigham's right hand he used to be—
Mild though he seems, and simple, and free;
Sound in the ways of the world, and great
In planning potent affairs of state;
Not bright, nor bumptious, you must know,
Too retiring for popular show,
But known to conceive on a startling scale
Gigantic plans that never fail;

To hold with a certain secret sense
The Prophet under his influence,
To be, I am led to understand,
The Brain, while the Prophet is the Hand,
And to see his intellectual way
Thro' moral dilemmas of every day,
By which the wisest are led astray.

Here's the Philosopher!—here he sits,
Here, with his vaguely wandering wits,
Among the dragons, as I have said,
Smiling, and holding his hand to his head.
What mighty thoughts are gathering now
Behind that marble mass of brow?
What daring schemes of polity
To set the popular conscience free,
And bless humanity, planneth he?
His talk is idle, a surface-gleam,
The ripple on the rest of the stream,

But his thoughts—ah, his thoughts—where do they fly,

While the wretched roses under his eye
Flutter and peep? and in what doth his plan
Turn to the counsel of Sister Anne?
For his eyes give ever a questioning look,
And the little one in her quiet nook
Flashes an answer, and back again
The question runs to the Brother's brain,
And the lights of speculation flit
Over his face and trouble it.

Follow his eyes once more, and scan
The fair young features of Sister Anne:
Frank and innocent, and in sooth
Full of the first fair flush of youth.
Quite a child—nineteen years old;
Not gushing, and self-possessed, and bold,
Like our Yankee women at nineteen,
But low of voice, and mild of mien—

More like the fresh young fruit you see
In the mother-land across the sea—
More like that rosiest flower on earth,
A blooming maiden of English birth,
Such as we find them yet awhile
Scatter'd about the homely Isle,
Not yet entirely eaten away
By the canker-novel of the day,
Or curling up and losing their scent
In a poisonous dew from the Continent.

There she sits, in her quiet nook,
Still bright tho' sadden'd; and while I look,
My heart is filled and my eyes are dim,
And I hate the Saint when I turn to him!
Ogre! Blue Beard! Oily and sly!
His meekness a cheat, his quiet a lie!
A roaring lion he'll walk the house
Tho' now he crouches like any mouse!
Had not he pluck'd enough and to spare
Of roses like these set fading there,

78 SAINT ABE AND THE SEVEN.

But he must seek to cajole and kiss
Another yet, and a child like this?
A maid on the stalk, just panting to prove
The honest joy of a virgin love;
A girl, a baby, an innocent child,
To be caught by the first man's face that smiled!
Scarce able the difference to fix
Of polygamy and politics!
Led to the altar like a lamb,
And sacrificed to the great god Sham!
Deluded, martyr'd, given to woe,
Last of seven who have perish'd so;
For who can say but the flowers I see
Were once as rosy and ripe as she?

Already the household worm has begun To feed on the cheeks of the little one; Already her spirit, fever-fraught, Droops to the weight of its own thought; Already she saddens and sinks and sighs, Watched by the jealous dragonish eyes. Even Amelia, sleepy and wan, Sharpens her orbs as she looks at Anne; While Sister Tabby, when she can spare Her gaze from the Saint in his easy-chair, Fixes her with a gorgon glare.

All is still and calm and polite,
The Sisters bolster themselves upright,
And try to smile, but the atmosphere
Is charged with thunder and lightning here.
Heavy it seems, and close and warm,
Like the air before a summer storm;
And at times,—as in that drowsy dream
Preluding thunder, all sounds will seem
Distinct and ominously clear,
And the far-off cocks seem crowing near;—
Ev'n so in the pauses of talk, each breast
Is strangely conscious of the rest,

And the tick of the watch of Abe the Saint Breaks on the air, distinct though faint, Like the ticking of his heart!

I rise

To depart, still glancing with piteous eyes
On Sister Anne; and I find her face
Turn'd questioning still to the same old place—
The face of the Saint. I stand and bow,
Curtsies again are bobbing now,
Dresses rustling. . . I know no more
Till the Saint has led me to the door,
And I find myself in a day-dream dim,
Just after shaking hands with him,
Standing and watching him sad and slow
Into the dainty dwelling go,
With a heavy sigh, and his hand to his head.

... Hark, distant thunder!—'tis as I said: The air was far too close;—at length The Storm is breaking in all its strength.

m.

PROMENADE-MAIN STREET, UTAH.

THE STRANGER.

Along the streets they're thronging, walking, Clad gaily in their best and talking,

Women and children, quite a crowd;
The bright sun overhead is blazing,
The people sweat, the dust they're raising
Arises like a golden cloud.

Still out of every door they scatter,

Laughing and light. Pray what's the matter,

That such a flock of folks I see?

A LOUNGER.

They're off to hear the Prophet patter, This yer's a day of jubilee.

VOICES.

Come along, we're late I reckon...

There's our Matt, I see him beckon...

How d'ye do, marm? glad to meet you...

Silence, Hiram, or I'll beat you...

Emm, there's brother Jones a-looking...

Here's warm weather, how I'm cooking!

STRANGER.

Afar the hills arise with cone and column Into a sky of brass serene and solemn; And underneath their shadow in one haze Of limpid heat the great salt waters blaze, While faint and filmy through the sultry veil The purple islands on their bosom sail

Like floating clouds of dark fantastic air.

How strangely sounds (while 'mid the Indian glare Moves the gay crowd of people old and young)

The bird-like chirp of the old Saxon tongue!
The women seem half weary and half gay,
Their eyes droop in a melancholy way,—
I have not seen a merry face to-day.

A BISHOP.

Thet's a smart hoss you're riding, brother!

How are things looking, down with you?

SECOND BISHOP.

Not over bright with one nor 'tother, Taters are bad, tomatoes blue.

You've heer'd of Brother Simpson's losses?— Buried his wife and spiled his hay.

And the three best of Hornby's hosses Some Injin cuss has stol'n away.

VOICES.

Zoë, jest fix up my gown...

There's my hair a-coming down...

Drat the babby, he's so crusty—

It's the heat as makes him thusty...

Come along, I'm almost sinking...

There's a stranger, and he's winking.

STRANGER.

That was a fine girl with the grey-hair'd lady, How shining were her eyes, how true and steady,

Not drooping down in guilty Mormon fashion,
But shooting at the soul their power and passion.
That's a big fellow, six foot two, not under,
But how he struts, and looks as black as thunder,
Half glancing round at his poor sheep to scare
'em—

Six, seven, eight, nine,—O Abraham, what a harem!

All berry brown, but looking scared as may be, And each one but the oldest with a baby.

A GIRL.

Phœbe!

ANOTHER.

Yes, Grace!

FIRST GIRL.

Don't seem to notice, dear,
That Yankee from the camp again is here,
Making such eyes, and following on the sly,
And coughing now and then to show he's nigh.

SECOND GIRL.

Who's that along with him—the little scamp Shaking his hair and nodding with a smile?

FIRST GIRL.

Guess he's some new one just come down to camp.

SECOND GIRL.

Isn't he handsome?

FIRST GIRL.

No; the first's my style!

STRANGER.

If my good friends, the Saints, could get their will,

These Yankee officers would fare but ill;
Wherever they approach the folk retire,
As if from veritable coals of fire;
With distant bow, set lips, and half-hid frown,
The Bishops pass them in the blessed town;
The women come behind like trembling sheep,
Some freeze to ice, some blush and steal a peep.
And often, as a band of maidens gay
Comes up, each maid ceases to talk and play,
Droops down her eyes, and does not look their way;

But after passing where the youngsters pine, All giggle as at one concerted sign, And tripping on with half-hush'd merry cries, Look boldly back with laughter in their eyes!

Voices.

Here we are, .. how folk are pushing...

Pheemy!.. Yes, John!.. Don't go staring

At that Yankee—it's past bearing.

Draw your veil down while he passes,

Reckon you're as bold as brass is.

ABE CLEWSON.

[Passing with his hand to his head, attended by his Wives.]

Head in a whirl, and heart in a flutter, Guess I don't know the half that I utter. Too much of this life is beginning to try me,

I'm like a dern'd miller the grind always nigh

me;

Praying don't sooth me nor comfort me any,

My house is too full and my blessings too many—

The ways o' the wilderness puzzle me greatly.

SISTER TABITHA.

- Do walk like a Christian, and keep kind o' stately!
- And jest keep an eye on those persons behind you,
- You call 'em your Wives, but they tease you and blind you;
- Sister Anne's a disgrace, tho' you think her a martyr,
- And she's tuck'd up her petticoat nigh to her garter.

STRANGER.

What group is this, begrim'd with dust and heat,

Staring like strangers in the open street?

The women, ragged, wretched, and half dead,
Sit on the kerbstone hot and hang the head,
And clustering at their side stand children brown,

Weary, with wondering eyes on the fair town.
Close by in knots beside the unhorsed team
The sunburn'd men stand talking in a dream,
For the vast tracts of country left behind
Seem now a haunting mirage in the mind.
Gaunt miners folding hands upon their breasts,

Big-jointed labourers looking ox-like down, And sickly artizans with narrow chests

Still pallid from the smoke of English town. Hard by to these a group of Teutons stand, Light-hair'd, blue-eyed, still full of Fatherland, With water-loving Northmen, who grow gay

To see the mimic sea gleam far away.

Now to this group, with a sharp questioning face,

Cometh a holy magnate of the place

In decent black; shakes hands with some;
and then

Begins an eager converse with the men:
All brighten; even the children hush their cries,
And the pale women smile with sparkling eyes.

BISHOP.

The Prophet welcomes you, and sends
His message by my mouth, my friends;
He'll see you snug, for on this shore
There's heaps of room for millions more!..
Scotchman, I take it?.. Ah, I know
Glasgow—was there a year or so...
And if you don't from Yorkshire hail,
I'll—ah, I thought so; seldom fail.

Make yourselves snug and rest a spell, There's liquor coming—meat as well. All welcome! We keep open door—Ah, we don't push away the poor; Tho' he's a fool, you understand, Who keeps poor long in this here land. The land of honey you behold—Honey and milk—silver and gold!

An Artizan.

Ah, that's the style—Bess, just you hear it; Come, come, old gal, keep up your spirit: Silver and gold, and milk and honey, This is the country for our money!

A GERMAN.

Es lebe die Stadt! es lebe dran! Das heilige Leben steht mir an!

A NORTHMAN.

Taler du norske?

BISHOP.

[Shaking his head, and turning with a wink to the English.]

No, not me!

Saxon's the language of the free:
The language of the great Evangels!
The language of the Saints and Angels!
The only speech that Joseph knew!
The speech of him and Brigham too!
Only the speech by which we've thriven
Is comprehended up in Heaven!..
Poor heathers! but we'll make 'em spry,
They'll talk like Christians by and by.

STRANGER.

[Strolling out of the streets.]

From east, from west, from every worn-out land, Yearly they stream to swell this busy band.

Out of the fever'd famine of the slums, From sickness, shame, and sorrow, Lazarus comes, Drags his sore limbs o'er half the world and sea, Seeking for freedom and felicity. The sewer of ignorance and shame and loss, Draining old Europe of its dirt and dross, Grows the great City by the will of God; While wondrously out of the desert sod, Nourished with lives unclean and weary hearts The new faith like a splendid weed upstarts. A splendid weed! rather a fair wild-flower, Strange to the eye in its first birth of power, But bearing surely in its breast the seeds Of higher issues and diviner deeds. Changed from Sahara to a fruitful vale Fairer than ever grew in fairy tale, Transmuted into plenteous field and glade By the slow magic of the white man's spade, Grows Deseret, filling its mighty nest Between the eastern mountains and the west,

While—who goes there? What shape antique looks down

From this green mound upon the festive town,
With tall majestic figure darkly set
Against the sky in dusky silhouette?
Strange his attire: a blanket edged with red
Wrapt royally around him; on his head
A battered hat of the strange modern sort
Which men have christened "chimney pots" in sport;

Mocassins on his feet, fur-fringed and grand,
And a large green umbrella in his hand.
Pensive he stands with deep-lined dreamy face,
Last living remnant of the mighty race
Who on these hunting-fields for many a year
Chased the wild buffalo, and elk, and deer.
Heaven help him! In his mien grief and despair
Seem to contend, as he stands musing there;
Until he notices that I am nigh,
And lo! with outstretched hands and glistening eye

Swift he descends—Does he mean mischief?
No;

He smiles and beckons as I turn to go.

INDIAN.

Me Medicine Crow. White man gib drink to me.

Great chief; much squaw; papoose, sah, one, two, three!

STRANGER.

With what a leer, half wheedling and half winking,

The lost one imitates the act of drinking;
His nose already, to his woe and shame,
Carbuncled with the white man's liquid flame!
Well, I pull out my flask, and fill a cup
Of burning rum—how quick he gulps it up;
And in a moment in his trembling grip
Thrusts out the cup for more with thirsty lip.

But no!—already drunken past a doubt, Degenerate nomad of the plains, get out!

[A railway whistle sounds in the far distance.]

Fire-hearted Demon tamed to human hand,
Rushing with smoky breath from land to land,
Screaming aloud to scare with rage and wrath
Primæval ignorance before his path,
Dragging behind him as he runs along
His lilliputian masters, pale and strong,
With melancholy sound for plain and hill
Man's last Familiar Spirit whistles shrill.

Poor devil of the plains, now spent and frail, Hovering wildly on the fatal trail, Pass on !—there lies thy way and thine abode, Get out of Jonathan thy master's road. Where ? anywhere !—he's not particular where, So that you clear the road, he does not care; Off, quick! clear out! ay, drink your fill and die;

And, since the Earth rejects you, try the Sky!

And see if He, who sent your white-faced brother

To hound and drive you from this world you bother,

Can find a corner for you in another!

WITHIN THE SYNAGOGUE.—SERMONIZETH THE PROPHET.

Sisters and brothers who love the right,

Saints whose hearts are divinely beating,
Children rejoicing in the light,

I reckon this is a pleasant meeting.

Where's the face with a look of grief?—

Jehovah's with us and leads the battle;

We've had a harvest beyond belief,

And the signs of fever have left the cattle;
All still blesses the holy life

DESCRIBETH THE FLIGHT FROM EGYPT. 99

FEMININE WHISPERS.

Brother Shuttleworth's seventeenth wife, . .

Her with the heer brushed up so funny!

THE PROPHET.

Out of Egypt hither we flew,

Through the desert and rocky places;

The people murmur'd, and all look'd blue,

The bones of the martyr'd filled our traces.

Mountain and valley we crawl'd along,

And every morning our hearts beat quicker.

Our flesh was weak, but our souls were strong,

And we'd managed to carry some kegs of liquor.

At last we halted on yonder height,

Just as the sun in the west was blinking.

FEMININE WHISPERS.

Isn't Jedge Hawkins's last a fright?...
I'm suttin that Brother Abe's been drinking!

THE PROPHET.

I saw the gushing of many fountains;
Soon as the morning began to beam,
Down we went from yonder mountains,
Found the water just where I thought,
Fresh and good, though a trifle gritty,
Pitch'd our tents in the plain, and wrought
The site and plan of the Holy City.
"Pioneers of the blest," I cried,
"Dig, and the Lord will bless each spade-

FEMININE WHISPERS.

ful."

Brigham's sealed to another Bride...

How worn he's gittin'! he's aging dreadful.

THE PROPHET.

This is a tale so often told,

The theme of every eventful meeting;
Yes! you may smile and think it old;

But yet it's a tale that will bear repeating.
That's how the City of Light began,

That's how we founded the saintly nation,
All by the spade and the arm of man,

And the aid of a special dispensation.
"Work" was the word when we begun,

"Work" is the word now we have plenty.

FEMININE WHISPERS.

Heard about Sister Euphemia's son?..

Sealing already, though only twenty!

THE PROPHET.

I say just now what I used to say,

Though it moves the heathens to mock and laughter,

From work to prayer is the proper way— Labour first, and Religion after.

Let a big man, strong in body and limb, Come here inquiring about his Maker,

This is the question I put to him,

"Can you grow a cabbage, or reap an acre?"

What's the soul but a flower sublime,

Grown in the earth and upspringing surely?

FEMININE WHISPERS.

O yes! she's hed a most dreadful time!

Twins, both thriving, though she's so poorly.

THE PROPHET.

Beauty, my friends, is the crown of life,

To the young and foolish seldom granted;

After a youth of honest strife

Comes the reward for which you've panted.

O blessed sight beyond compare,
When life with its halo of light is rounded,
To see a Saint with reverend hair
Sitting like Solomon love-surrounded!
One at his feet and one on his knee,
Others around him, blue-eyed and dreamy!

FEMININE WHISPERS.

All very well, but as for me,

My man had better!—I'd pison him,

Pheemy!

THE PROPHET.

There in the gate of Paradise

The Saint is sitting serene and hoary,

Tendrils of arms, and blossoms of eyes,

Festoon him round in his place of glory;

Little cherubs float thick as bees

Round about him, and murmur "father!"

The sun shines bright and he sits at ease,
Fruit all round for his hand to gather.
Blessed is he both night and day,
Floating to Heaven and adding to it!

FEMININE WHISPERS.

Thought I should have gone mad that day

He brought a second; I made him rue it!

THE PROPHET.

Sisters and Brothers by love made wise,

Remember, when Satan attempts to quell

you,

If this here Earth isn't Paradise
You'll never see it, and so I tell you.

Dig and drain, and harrow and sow, God will bless you beyond all measure;

Labour, and meet with reward below,

For what is the end of all labour? Pleasure!

Labour's the vine, and pleasure's the grape, The one delighting, the other bearing.

FEMININE WHISPERS.

Higginson's third is losing her shape. She hes too many—it's dreadful wearing.

THE PROPHET.

But I hear some awakening spirit cry,

"Labour is labour, and all men know it;

But what is pleasure?" and I reply,

Grace abounding and Wives to show it!

Holy is he beyond compare

Who tills his acres and takes his blessing,

Who sees around him everywhere

Sisters soothing and babes caressing.

And his delight is Heaven's as well,

For swells he not the ranks of the chosen?

FEMININE WHISPERS.

Martha is growing a handsome gel...

Three at a birth :—that makes the dozen!

THE PROPHET.

Learning's a shadow, and books a jest,

One Book's a Light, but the rest are human.

The kind of study that I think best

Is the use of a spade and the love of a woman.

Here and yonder, in heaven and earth,

By big Salt Lake and by Eden river,

The finest sight is a man of worth,

Never tired of increasing his quiver.

He sits in the light of perfect grace

With a dozen cradles going together!

FEMININE WHISPERS.

The babby's growing black in the face!

Carry him out—it's the heat of the weather!

THE PROPHET.

A faithful vine at the door of the Lord,
A shining flower in the garden of spirits,
A lute whose strings are of sweet accord,
Such is the person of saintly merits.
Sisters and brothers, behold and strive
Up to the level of his perfection;
Sow, and harrow, and dig, and thrive,
Increase according to God's direction.
This is the Happy Land, no doubt,
Where each may flourish in his vocation...
Brother Bantam will now give out
The hymn of love and of jubilation.

THE FALLING OF THE THUNDERBOLT.

Deep and wise beyond expression
Sat the Prophet holding session,
And his Elders, round him sitting
With a gravity befitting,
Never rash and never fiery,
Chew'd the cud of each inquiry,
Weigh'd each question and discussed it,
Sought to so ttle and adjust it,
Till, with sudden indication
Of a gush of inspiration,
The grave Prophet from their middle
Gave the answer to their riddle,

And the lesser lights all holy, Round the Lamp revolving slowly, Thought, with eyes and lips asunder, "Right, we reckon, he's a wonder!"

Whether Boyes, that blessed brother Should be sealed unto another, Having, tho' a Saint most steady, Very many wives already? Whether it was held improper, If a woman drank, to drop her? Whether unto Brother Fleming Formal praise would be beseeming, Since from three or four potatoes, (Not much bigger than his great toes) He'd extracted, to their wonder, Four stone six and nothing under? Whether Bigg be reprimanded For his conduct underhanded,

110 FALLING OF THE THUNDERBOLT.

Since he'd packed his prettiest daughter To a heathen o'er the water? How, now Thompson had departed, His poor widows, broken-hearted, Should be settled? They were seven, Sweet as cherubs up in heaven; Three were handsome, young, and pleasant, And had offers on at present— Must they take them?.. These and other Questions proffer'd by each brother, The great Prophet ever gracious, Free and easy, and sagacious, Answer'd after meditation With sublime deliberation: And his answers were so clever Each one whisper'd, "Well I never!" And the lesser lights all holy, Round the Prophet turning slowly, Raised their reverend heads and hoary. Thinking, "To the Prophet, glory!

CONSTERNATION IN THE SESSION. 111

Hallelujah, veneration, Reckon that he licks creation!"

Suddenly as they sat gleaming,
On them came an unbeseeming
Murmur, tumult, and commotion,
Like the breaking of the ocean;
And before a word was utter'd,
In rush'd one with voice that fluttered
Arms uplifted, face the colour
Of a bran-new Yankee dollar,
Like a man whose wits are addled,
Crying—"Brother Abe's skedaddled!"

Then those Elders fearful-hearted
Raised a loud cry and upstarted,
But the Prophet, never rising,
Said, "Be calm! this row's surprising!"
And as each Saint sank unsinew'd
In his arm-chair he continued:

112 FALLING OF THE THUNDERBOLT.

"Goodman Jones, your cheeks are yellow, Tell thy tale, and do not bellow! What's the reason of your crying— Is our brother dead?—or dying?"

As the Prophet spake, supremely
Hushing all the strife unseemly,
Sudden in the room there entered
Shapes on whom all eyes were centred—
Six sad female figures moaning,
Trembling, weeping, and intoning,
"We are widows broken-hearted—
Abraham Clewson has departed!"

While the Saints again upleaping
Joined their voices to the weeping,
For a moment the great Prophet
Trembled, and look'd dark as Tophet.
But the cloud pass'd over lightly,
"Cease!" he cried, but sniffled slightly,

"Cease this murmur and be quiet—
Dead men won't awake with riot.
'Tis indeed a loss stupendous—
When will Heaven his equal send us?
Speak, then, of our brother cherish'd,
Was it fits by which he perish'd?
Or did Death come even quicker,
'Thro' a bolting horse or kicker?''

At the Prophet's question scowling,
All the Wives stood moaning, howling,
Crying wildly in a fever,
"O the villain! the deceiver!"
But the oldest stepping boldly,
Curtseying to the Session coldly,
Cried in voice like cracking thunder,
"Prophet, don't you make a blunder!
Abraham Clewson isn't dying—
Hasn't died, as you're implying.

114 FALLING OF THE THUNDERBOLT.

No! he's not the man, my brothers,
To die decently like others!
Worse! he's from your cause revolted—
Run away! ske-daddled! bolted!"

Bolted! run away! skedaddled!

Like to men whose wits are addled,

Echoed all those Lights so holy,

Round the Prophet shining slowly

And the Prophet, undissembling,

Underneath the blow sat trembling.

While the perspiration hovered

On his forehead, and he covered

With one trembling hand his features

From the gaze of smaller creatures.

Then at last the high and gifted

Cough'd and craved, with hands uplifted,

Silence. When 'twas given duly,

"This," said he, "'s a crusher truly!

Brother Clewson fall'n from glory!
I can scarce believe your story.
O my Saints, each in his station,
Join in prayer and meditation!"

Covering up each eyelid saintly
With a finger tip, prayed faintly,
Shining in the church's centre,
Their great Prophet, Lamp, and Mentor;
And the lesser Lights all holy,
Round the Lamp revolving slowly,
Each upon his seat there sitting,
With a gravity befitting,
Bowed their reverend heads and hoary,
Saying, "To the Prophet glory!
Hallelujah, veneration!
Reckon that he licks creation!"

Lastly, when the trance was ended, And, with face where sorrow blended

116 FALLING OF THE THUNDERBOLT.

Into pity and compassion,
Shone the Light in common fashion;
Forth the Brother stept who brought them
First the news which had distraught them,
And, while stood the Widows weeping,
Gave into the Prophet's keeping
A seal'd paper, which the latter
Read, as if 'twere solemn matter—
Gravely pursing lips and nodding,
While they watch'd in dark foreboding,
Till at last, with voice that quivered,
He these woeful words delivered:—

"Sisters, calm your hearts unruly,
'Tis an awful business truly;
Weeping now will save him never,
He's as good as lost for ever;
Yes, I say with grief unspoken,
Jest a pane crack'd, smash'd, and broken

In the windows of the Temple—
Crack'd 's the word—so take example!
Had he left ye one and all here
On our holy help to call here,
Fled alone from every fetter,
I could comprehend it better!
Flying, not with some strange lady,
But with her he had already,
With his own seal'd Wife eloping—
It's a case of craze past hoping!
List, O Saints, each in his station,
To the idiot's explanation!"

Then, while now and then the holy Broke the tale of melancholy
With a grunt contempt expressing,
And the widows made distressing
Murmurs of recrimination
Here and there in the narration,
The great Prophet in affliction
Read this awful Valediction!

LAST EPISTLE OF ST. ABE TO THE POLYGAMISTS.

- O Brother, Prophet of the Light!—don't let my state distress you,
- While from the depths of darkest night I cry, "Farewell! God bless you!"
- I don't deserve a parting tear, nor even a malediction,
- Too weak to fill a saintly sphere, I yield to my affliction;
- Down like a cataract I shoot into the depths below you,
- While you stand wondering and mute, my last adieu I throw you;

- Commending to your blessed care my well-beloved spouses,
- My debts (there's plenty and to spare to pay them), lands, and houses,
- My sheep, my cattle, farm and fold, yea, all by which I've thriven:
- These to be at the auction sold, and to my widows given.
- Bless them! to prize them at their worth was far beyond my merit,
- Just make them think me in the earth, a poor departed spirit.
- I couldn't bear to say good-bye, and see their tears up-starting;
- I thought it best to pack and fly without the pain of parting!
- O tell Amelia, if she can, by careful education,
- To make her boy grow up a man of strength and saintly station!

- Tell Fanny to beware of men, and say I'm still her debtor—
- Tho' she cut sharpish now and then, I think it made me better!
- Let Emily still her spirit fill with holy consolations—
- Seraphic soul, I hear her still a-reading "Revelations!"
- Bid Mary now to dry her tears—she's free of her chief bother;
- And comfort Sarah—I've my fears she's going to be a mother;
- And to Tabitha give for me a tender kiss of healing—
- Guilt wrings my soul—I seem to see that well-known face appealing!
- And now,—before my figure fades for ever from your vision,
- Before I mingle with the shades beyond your light Elysian,

- Now, while your faces all turn pale, and you raise eyes and shiver,
- Let me a round unvarnish'd tale (as Shakspere says) deliver;
- And let there be a warning text in my most shameful story,
- When some poor sheep, perplext and vext, goes seeking too much glory.
- O Brigham, think of my poor fate, a scandal to beholders,
- And don't again put too much weight before you've tried the shoulders!
- Though I'd the intellectual gift, and knew the rights and reasons;
- Though I could trade, and save, and shift, according to the seasons;
- Though I was thought a clever man, and was at spouting splendid,—
- Just think how finely I began, and see how all has ended!

- In principle unto this hour I'm still a holy being—
- But oh, how poorly is my power proportion'd to my seeing!
- You've all the logic on your side, you're right in each conclusion,
- And yet how vainly have I tried, with eager resolution!
- My will was good, I felt the call, although my strength was meagre,
- There wasn't one among you all to serve the Lord more eager!
- I never tired in younger days of drawing lambs unto me,
- My lot was one to bless and praise, the fire of faith thrill'd through me.
- And you, believing I was strong, smiled on me like a father,—
- Said, "Blessëd be this man, though young, who the sweet lambs doth gather!"

- At first it was a time full blest, and all my earthy pleasure
- Was gathering lambs unto my breast to cherish and to treasure;
- Ay, one by one, for heaven's sake, my female flock I found me,
- Until one day I did awake and heard them bleating round me,
- And there was sorrow in their eyes, and mute reproach and wonder,
- For they perceived to their surprise their Shepherd was a blunder.
- O Brigham, think of it and weep, my firm and saintly Master—
- The Pastor trembled at his Sheep, the Sheep despised the Pastor!
- O listen to the tale of dread, thou Light that shines so brightly—
- Virtue's a horse that drops down dead if overloaded slightly!

- She's all the will, she wants to go, she'd carry every tittle;
- But when you see her flag and blow, just ease her of a little!
- One wife for me was near enough, two might have fixed me neatly,
- Three made me shake, four made me puff, five settled me completely,—
- But when the sixth came, though I still was glad and never grumbled,
- I took the staggers, kick'd, went ill, and in the traces tumbled!
- Ah, well may I compare my state unto a beast's position—
- Unfit to bear a saintly weight, I sank and lost condition;
- I lack'd the moral nerve and thew, to fill so fine a station—
- Ah, if I'd had a head like you, and your determination!

- Instead of going in and out, like a superior party,
- I was too soft of heart, no doubt, too open, and too hearty.
- When I began with each young sheep I was too free and loving,
- Not being strong and wise and deep, I set her feelings moving;
- And so, instead of noticing the gentle flock in common,
- I waken'd up that mighty thing—the Spirit of a Woman.
- Each got to think me, don't you see,—so foolish was the feeling,—
- Her own especial property, which all the rest were stealing!
- And, since I could not give to each the whole of my attention,
- All came to grief, and parts of speech too delicate to mention!

- Bless them! they loved me far too much, they erred in their devotion,
- I lack'd the proper saintly touch, subduing mere emotion:—
- The solemn air sent from the skies, so cold, so tranquillising,
- That on the female waters lies, and keeps the same from rising,
- But holds them down all smooth and bright, and, if some wild wind storms 'em,
- Comes like a cold frost in the night, and into ice transforms 'em!
- And there, between ourselves, I see the difficulty growing,
- Since most men are as meek as me, too passionate and glowing;
- They cannot in your royal way dwell like a guest from Heaven
- Within this tenement of clay, which for the Soul is given;

- They cannot like a blessed guest come calm and strong into it,
- Eating and drinking of its best, and calmly gazing thro' it.
- No, every mortal's not a Saint, and truly very few are,
- So weak they are, they cannot paint what holy men like you are.
- Instead of keeping well apart the Flesh and Spirit, brother,
- And making one with cunning art the nigger of the other,
- They muddle and confuse the two, they mix and twist and mingle,
- So that it takes a cunning view to make out either single.
- The Soul gets mingled with the Flesh beyond all separation,
- The Body holds it in a mesh of animal sensation;

- The poor bewilder'd Being, grown a thing in nature double,
- Half light and soul, half flesh and bone, is given up to trouble.
- He thinks the instinct of the clay, the glowings of the Spirit,
- And when the Spirit has her say, inclines the Flesh to hear it.
- The slave of every passing whim, the dupe of every devil,
- Inspired by every female limb to love, and light, and revel,
- Impulsive, timid, weak, or strong, as Flesh or Spirit makes him,
- The lost one wildly moans along till mischief overtakes him;
- And when the Soul has fed upon the Flesh till life's spring passes,
- Finds strength and health and comfort gone the way of last year's grasses,

- And the poor Soul is doom'd to bow, in deep humiliation,
- Within a place that isn't now a decent habitation.
- No! keep the Soul and Flesh apart in pious resolution,
- Don't let weak flutterings of the heart lead you to my confusion!
- But let the Flesh be as the horse, the Spirit as the rider,
- And use the snaffle first of course, and ease her up and guide her;
- And if she's going to resist, and won't let none go past her,
- Just take the curb and give a twist, and show her you're the Master.
- The Flesh is but a temporal thing, and Satan's strength is in it.
- Use it, but conquer it, and bring its vice down every minute!

- Into a woman's arms don't fall, as if you meant to stay there,
- Just come as if you'd made a call, and idly found your way there;
- Don't praise her too much to her face, but keep her calm and quiet,—
- Most female illnesses take place thro' far too warm a diet;
- Unto her give your fleshly kiss, calm, kind, and patronising,
- Then—soar to your own sphere of bliss, before her heart gets rising!
- Don't fail to let her see full clear, how in your saintly station
- The Flesh is but your nigger here obeying your dictation;
- And tho' the Flesh be e'er so warm, your Soul the weakness smothers
- Of loving any female form much better than the others!

DIVIDETH MEN INTO TWO CLASSES. 131

- O Brigham, I can see you smile to hear the Devil preaching;—
- Well, I can praise your perfect style, tho' far beyond my reaching.
- Forgive me, if in shame and grief I vex you with digression,
- And let me come again in brief to my own dark confession.
- The world of men divided is into two portions, brother,
- The first are Saints, so high in bliss that they the Flesh can smother;
- God meant them from fair flower to flower to flutter, smiles bestowing,
- Tasting the sweet, leaving the sour, just hovering,—and going.
- The second are a different set, just halves of perfect spirits,
- Going about in bitter fret, of uncompleted merits,

- Till they discover, here or there, their other half (or woman),
- Then these two join, and make a Pair, and so increase the human.
- The second Souls inferior are, a lower spiritorder,
- Born 'neath a less auspicious star, and taken by soft sawder;—
- And if they do not happen here to find their fair Affinity,
- They come to grief and doubt and fear, and end in assininity;
- And if they try the blessed game of those superior to them,
- They're very quickly brought to shame,—their passions so undo them.
- In some diviner sphere, perhaps, they'll look and grow more holy,—
- Meantime they're vessels Sorrow taps and grim Remorse sucks slowly.

- Now, Brigham, I was made, you see, one of those lower creatures,
- Polygamy was not for me, altho' I joined its preachers.
- Instead of, with a wary eye, seeking the one who waited,
- And sticking to her, wet or dry, because the thing was fated,
- I snatch'd the first whose beauty stirred my soul with tender feeling!
- And then another! then a third! and so continued Sealing!
- And duly, after many a smart, discovered, sighing faintly,
- I hadn't found my missing part, and wasn't strong and saintly!
- O they were far too good for me, altho' their zeal betrayed them;—
- Unfortunately, don't you see, heaven for some other made them:

- Each would a downright blessing be, and Peace would pitch the tent for her,
- If "she" could only find the "he" originally meant for her!
- Well, Brother, after many years of bad domestic diet,
- One morning I woke up in tears, still weary and unquiet,
- And (speaking figuratively) lo! beside my bed stood smiling
- The Woman, young and virgin snow, but beckoning and beguiling.
- I started up, my wild eyes rolled, I knew her, and stood sighing,
- My thoughts throng'd up like bees of gold out of the smithy flying.
- And as she stood in brightness there, familiar, tho' a stranger,
- I looked at her in dumb despair, and trembled at the danger.

THE RAPTURES OF THE UNSAINTLY. 135

- But, Brother Brigham, don't you think the Devil could so undo me,
- That straight I rushed the cup to drink too late extended to me.
- No, for I hesitated long, ev'n when I found she loved me,
- And didn't seem to think it wrong when love and passion moved me.
- O Brigham, you're a Saint above, and know not the sensation
- The ecstasy, the maddening love, the rapturous exultation,
- That fills a man of lower race with wonder past all speaking,
- When first he finds in one sweet face the Soul he has been seeking!
- When two immortal beings glow in the first fond revealing,
- And their inferior natures know the luxury of feeling!

- But ah, I had already got a quiver-full of blessing,
- Had blundered, tho' I knew it not, six times beyond redressing,
- And surely it was time to stop, tho' still my lot was lonely:
- My house was like a cobbler's shop, full, tho' with "misfits" only.
- And so I should have stopt, I swear, the wretchedest of creatures,
- Rather than put one mark of care on her belovéd features:
- But that it happen'd Sister Anne (ah, now the secret's flitted!)
- Was left in this great world of man unto my care committed.
- Her father, Jason Jones, was dead, a man whose faults were many,
- "O, be a father, Abe," he said, "to my poor daughter, Annie!"

- And so I promised, so she came an Orphan to this city,
- And set my foolish heart in flame with mingled love and pity;
- And as she prettier grew each day, and throve 'neath my protection,
- I saw the Saints did cast her way some tokens of affection.
- O, Brigham, pray forgive me now;—envy and love combining,
- I hated every saintly brow, benignantly inclining!
- Sneered at their motives, mocked the cause, went wild and sorrow-laden,
- And saw Polygamy's vast jaws a-yawning for the maiden.
- Why not, you say? Ah, yes, why not, from your high point of vision;
- But I'm of an inferior lot, beyond the light Elysian.

- I tore my hair, whined like a whelp, I loved her to distraction,
- I saw the danger, knew the help, yet trembled at the action.
- At last I came to you, my friend, and told my tender feeling;
- You said, "Your grief shall have an end—this is a case for Sealing;
- And since you have deserved so well, and made no heinous blunder,
- Why, brother Abraham, take the gel, but mind you keep her under."
- Well! then I went to Sister Anne, my inmost heart unclothing,
- Told her my feelings like a man, concealing next to nothing,
- Explain'd the various characters of those I had already,
- The various tricks and freaks and stirs peculiar to each lady,

- And, finally, when all was clear, and hope seem'd to forsake me,
- "There! it's a wretched chance, my dear—you leave me, or you take me."
- Well, Sister Annie look'd at me, her inmost heart revealing
- (Women are very weak, you see, inferior, full of feeling),
- Then, thro' her tears outshining bright, "I'll never never leave you!
- "O Abe," she said, "my love, my light, why should I pain or grieve you?
- I do not love the way of life you have so sadly chosen.
- I'd rather be a single wife than one in half a dozen:
- But now you cannot change your plan, tho' health and spirit perish,
- And I shall never see a man but you to love and cherish.

- Take me, I'm yours, and O, my dear, don't think I miss your merit,
- I'll try to help a little here your true and loving spirit."
- "Reflect, my love," I said, "once more," with bursting heart, half crying,
- "Two of the girls cut very sore, and most of them are trying!"
- And then that gentle-hearted maid kissed me and bent above me,
- "O Abe," she said, "don't be afraid,—I'll try to make them love me!"
- Ah well! I scarcely stopt to ask myself, till all was over,
- How precious tough would be her task who made those dear souls love her!
- But I was seal'd to Sister Anne, and straightway to my wonder
- A series of events began which show'd me all my blunder.

- Brother, don't blame the souls who erred thro' their excess of feeling—
- So angrily their hearts were stirred by my last act of sealing;
- But in a moment they forgot the quarrels they'd been wrapt in,
- And leagued together in one lot, with Tabby for the Captain.
- Their little tiffs were laid aside, and all combined together,
- Preparing for the gentle Bride the blackest sort of weather.
- It wasn't feeling made them flout poor Annie in that fashion,
- It wasn't love turn'd inside out, it wasn't jealous passion,
- It wasn't that they cared for me, or any other party,
- Their hearts and sentiments were free, their appetites were hearty.

- But when the pretty smiling face came blossom ing and blooming,
- Like sunshine in a shady place the fam'ly Vault illuming,
- It naturally made them grim to see its sunny colour,
- While like a row of tapers dim by daylight, they grew duller.
- She tried her best to make them kind, she coaxed and served them dumbly,
- She watch'd them with a willing mind, deferred to them most humbly;
- Tried hard to pick herself a friend, but found her arts rejected,
- And fail'd entirely in her end, as one might have expected.
- But, Brother, tho' I'm loathe to add one word to criminate them,
- I think their conduct was too bad,—it almost made me hate them.

- Ah me, the many nagging ways of women are amazing,
- Their cleverness solicits praise, their cruelty is crazing!
- And Sister Annie hadn't been a single day their neighbour,
- Before a baby could have seen her life would be a labour.
- But bless her little loving heart, it kept its sorrow hidden,
- And if the tears began to start, suppressed the same unbidden.
- She tried to smile, and smiled her best, till I thought sorrow silly,
- And kept in her own garden nest, and lit it like a lily.
- O I should waste your time for days with talk like this at present,
- If I described her thousand ways of making things look pleasant!

- But, bless you, 'twere as well to try, when thunder's at its dire work,
- To clear the air, and light the sky, by pennyworths of firework.
- These gentle ways to hide her woe and make my life a blessing,
- Just made the after darkness grow more gloomy and depressing.
- Taunts, mocks, and jeers, coldness and sneers, insult and trouble daily,
- A thousand stabs that brought the tears, all these she cover'd gaily;
- But when her fond eyes fell on me, the light of love to borrow,
- And Sister Anne began to see I knew her secret sorrow,
- All of a sudden like a mask the loving cheat forsook her,
- And reckon I had all my task, for illness overtook her.

- She took to bed, grew sad and thin, seem'd like a spirit flying,
- Smiled thro' her tears when I went in, but when I left fell crying;
- And as she languish'd in her bed, as weak and wan as water,
- I thought of what her father said, "Take care of my dear daughter!"
- Then I look'd round with secret eye upon her many Sisters,
- And close at hand I saw them lie, ready for use
 —like blisters;
- They seemed with secret looks of glee, to keep their wifely station;
- They set their lips and sneer'd at me, and watch'd the situation.
- O Brother, I can scarce express the agony of those moments,
- I fear your perfect saintliness, and dread your cutting comments!

- I prayed, I wept, I moan'd, I cried, I anguish'd night and morrow,
- I watch'd and waited, sleepless-eyed, beside that bed of sorrow.
- At last I knew, in those dark days of sorrow and disaster,
- Mine wasn't soil where you could raise a Saint up, or a Pastor;
- In spite of careful watering, and tilling night and morning,
- The weeds of vanity would spring without a word of warning.
- I was and ever must subsist, labell'd on every feature,
- A wretched poor Monogamist, a most inferior creature—
- Just half a soul, and half a mind, a blunder and abortion,
- Not finish'd half till I could find the other missing portion!

- And gazing on that missing part which I at last had found out,
- I murmur'd with a burning heart, scarce strong to get the sound out,
- "If from the greedy clutch of Fate I save this chief of treasures,
- I will no longer hesitate, but take decided measures!
- A poor monogamist like me can not love half a dozen,
- Better by far, then, set them free! and take the Wife I've chosen!
- Their love for me, of course, is small, a very shadowy tittle,
- They will not miss my face at all, or miss it very little.
- I can't undo what I have done, by my forlorn embraces,
- And call the brightness of the sun again into their faces:

- But I can save one spirit true, confiding and unthinking,
- From slowly curdling to a shrew or into swinedom sinking."
- These were my bitter words of woe, my fears were so distressing,
- Not that I would reflect—O no!—on any living blessing.
- Thus, Brother, I resolved, and when she rose, still frail and sighing,
- I kept my word like better men, and bolted,—and I'm flying.
- Into oblivion I haste, and leave the world behind me,
- Afar unto the starless waste, where not a soul shall find me.
- I send my love, and Sister Anne joins cordially, agreeing
- I never was the sort of man for your high state of being;

- Such as I am, she takes me, though; and after years of trying,
- From Eden hand in hand we go, like our first parents flying;
- And like the bright sword that did chase the first of sons and mothers,
- Shines dear Tabitha's flaming face, surrounded by the others:
- Shining it threatens there on high, above the gates of heaven,
- And faster at the sight we fly, in naked shame, forth-driven.
- Nothing of all my worldly store I take, 'twould be improper,
- I go a pilgrim, strong and poor, without a single copper.
- Unto my Widows I outreach my property completely.
- There's modest competence for each, if it is managed neatly.

- That, Brother, is a labour left to your sagacious keeping;—
- Comfort them, comfort the bereft! I'm good as dead and sleeping!
- A fallen star, a shooting light, a portent and an omen,
- A moment passing on the sight, thereafter seen by no men!
- I go, with backward looking face, and spirit rent asunder.
- O may you prosper in your place, for you're a shining wonder!
- So strong, so sweet, so mild, so good!—by Heaven's dispensation,
- Made Husband to a multitude and Father to a nation!
- May all the saintly life ensures increase and make you stronger!
- Humbly and penitently yours,

A. CLEWSON (Saint no longer).

THE FARM IN THE VALLEY—SUNSET.

(1871.)

THE FARM IN THE VALLEY.

STILL the saintly City stands,
Wondrous work of busy hands;
Still the lonely City thrives,
Rich in worldly goods and wives,
And with thrust-out jaw and set
Teeth, the Yankee threatens yet—
Half admiring and half riled,
Oft by bigger schemes beguiled,
Turning off his curious stare
To communities elsewhere,
Always with unquiet eye
Watching Utah on the sly.

Long the City of the Plain Left its image on my brain: White kiosks and gardens bright Rising in a golden light; Busy figures everywhere Bustling bee-like in the glare; And from dovecots in green places, Peep'd out weary women's faces, Flushing faint to a thin cry From the nursery hard by. And the City in my thought Slept fantastically wrought, Till the whole began to seem Like a curious Eastern dream, Like the pictures strange we scan In the tales Arabian: Tales of magic art and sleight, Cities rising in a night, And of women richly clad, Dark-eyed, melancholy, sad,

Ever with a glance uncertain,
Trembling at the purple curtain,
Lest behind the black slave stand
With the bowstring in his hand;—
Happy tales, within whose heart
Founts of weeping eyes upstart,
Told, to save her pretty head,
By Scheherazad in bed!

All had faded and grown faint, Save the figure of the Saint Who that memorable night Left the Children of the Light, Flying o'er the lonely plain From his lofty sphere of pain Oft his gentle face would flit O'er my mind and puzzle it, Ever waking up meanwhile Something of a merry smile,

156 THE FARM IN THE VALLEY.

Whose quick light illumined me During many a reverie, When I puffed my weed alone.

Faint and strange the face had grown,
Tho' for five long years or so
I had watched it come and go,
When, on busy thoughts intent,
I into New England went,
And one evening, riding slow
By a River that I know,
(Gentle stream! I hide thy name,
Far too modest thou for fame!)
I beheld the landscape swim
In the autumn hazes dim,
And from out the neighbouring dales
Heard the thumping of the flails.

All was hush'd; afar away (As a novelist would say)

Sank the mighty orb of day, Staring with a hazy glow On the purple plain below, Where (like burning embers shed From the sunset's glowing bed, Dying out or burning bright, Every leaf a blaze of light) Ran the maple swamps ablaze; Everywhere amid the haze, Floating strangely in the air, Farms and homesteads gather'd fair; And the River rippled slow Thro' the marshes green and low, Spreading oft as smooth as glass As it fringed the meadow grass, Making 'mong the misty fields Pools like golden gleaming shields.

Thus I walked my steed along, Humming a low scrap of song,

Watching with an idle eye White clouds in the dreamy sky Sailing with me in slow pomp. In the bright flush of the swamp, While his dogs bark'd in the wood, Gun in hand the sportsman stood; And beside me, wading deep, Stood the angler half asleep, Figure black against the gleam Of the bright pools of the stream; Now and then a wherry brown With the current drifted down Sunset-ward, and as it went Made an oar-splash indolent; While with solitary sound, Deepening the silence round, In a voice of mystery Faintly cried the chickadee.

Suddenly the River's arm Rounded, and a lonely Farm Stood before me blazing red To the bright blaze overhead; In the homesteads at its side. Cattle lowed and voices cried. And from out the shadows dark Came a mastiff's measured bark. Fair and fat stood the abode On the path by which I rode, And a mighty orchard, strown Still with apple-leaves wind-blown, Raised its branches gnarl'd and bare Black against the sunset air, And with greensward deep and dim, Wander'd to the River's brim.

Close beside the orchard walk Linger'd one in quiet talk With a man in workman's gear.

As my horse's feet drew near,
The labourer nodded rough "good-day,"
Turned his back and loung'd away.
Then the first, a plump and fat
Yeoman in a broad straw hat,
Stood alone in thought intent,
Watching while the other went,
And amid the sunlight red
Paused, with hand held to his head.

In a moment, like a word
Long forgotten until heard,
Like a buried sentiment
Born again to some stray scent,
Like a sound to which the brain
Gives familiar refrain,
Something in the gesture brought
Things forgotten to my thought;

Memory, as I watched the sight,
Flashed from eager light to light.
Remember'd and remember'd not,
Half familiar, half forgot,
Stood the figure, till at last,
Bending eyes on his, I passed,
Gazed again, as loth to go,
Drew the rein, stopt short, and so
Rested, looking back; when he,
The object of my scrutiny,
Smiled and nodded, saying, "Yes!
Stare your fill, young man! I guess
You'll know me if we meet again!"

In a moment all my brain
Was illumined at the tone,
All was vivid that had grown
Faint and dim, and straight I knew him,
Holding out my hand unto him,
Smiled, and called him by his name.

162 THE FARM IN THE VALLEY.

Wondering, hearing me exclaim,
Abraham Clewson (for 'twas he)
Came more close and gazed at me.
As he gazed, a merry grin
Brighten'd down from eyes to chin:
In a moment he, too, knew me,
Reaching out his hand unto me,
Crying "Track'd, by all that's blue!
Who'd have thought of seeing you?"

Then, in double quicker time
Than it takes to make the rhyme,
Abe, with face of welcome bright,
Made me from my steed alight;
Call'd a boy, and bade him lead
The beast away to bed and feed;
And, with hand upon my arm,
Led me off into the Farm,
Where, amid a dwelling-place
Fresh and bright as her own face,

With a gleam of shining ware
For a background everywhere,
Free as any summer breeze,
With a bunch of huswife's keys
At her girdle, sweet and mild
Sister Annie blush'd and smiled,—
While two tiny laughing girls,
Peeping at me through their curls,
Hid their sweet shamefacëdness
In the skirts of Annie's dress.

That same night the Saint and I
Sat and talked of times gone by,
Smoked our pipes and drank our grog
By the slowly smouldering log,
While the clock's hand slowly crept
To midnight, and the household slept.

"Happy?" Abe said with a smile, "Yes, in my inferior style, Meek and humble, not like them In the New Jerusalem." Here his hand, as if astray, For a moment found its way To his forehead, as he said, "Reckon they believe I'm dead! Ah, that life of sanctity Never was the life for me. Couldn't stand it wet nor dry, Hated to see women cry: Couldn't bear to be the cause Of tiffs and squalls and endless jaws; Always felt amid the stir Jest a whited sepulchre; And I did the best I could When I ran away for good. Yet, for many a night, you know (Annie, too, would tell you so),

Couldn't sleep a single wink, Couldn't eat, and couldn't drink, Being kind of conscience-cleft For those poor creatures I had left. Not till I got news from there, And I found their fate was fair, Could I set to work, or find Any comfort in my mind. Well (here Abe smiled quietly), Guess they didn't groan for me! Fanny and Amelia got Sealed to Brigham on the spot; Emmy soon consoled herself In the arms of Brother Delf; And poor Mary one fine day Packed her traps and tript away Down to Fresco with Fred Bates, A young player from the States; While Sarah, 'twas the wisest plan, Pick'd herself a single man-

A young joiner fresh come down
Out of Texas to the town—
And he took her with her baby,
And they're doing well as maybe."

Here the Saint with quiet smile,
Sipping at his grog the while,
Paused as if his tale was o'er,
Held his tongue and said no more.
"Good," I said, "but have you done?
You have spoke of all save one—
All your Widows, so bereft,
Are most comfortably left,
But of one alone you said
Nothing. Is the lady dead?"

Then the good man's features broke
Into brightness as I spoke,
And with loud guffaw cried he,
"What, Tabitha? Dead! Not she.

All alone and doing splendid— Jest you guess, now, how she's ended! Give it up? This very week I heard she's at Oneida Creek. All alone and doing hearty, Down with Brother Noyes's party. Tried the Shakers first, they say, Tired of them and went away, Testing with a deal of bother This community and t'other, Till she to Oneida flitted, . And with trouble got admitted. Bless you, she's a shining lamp, Tho' I used her like a scamp, And she's great in exposition Of the Free Love folk's condition. Vowing, tho' she found it late, 'Tis the only happy state....

[&]quot;As for me," added the speaker,
"I'm lower in the scale, and weaker;

168 THE FARM IN THE VALLEY.

Polygamy's beyond my merits,
Shakerism wears the spirits,
And as for Free Love, why you see
Here the Saint wink'd wickedly)
With my whim it might have hung
Once, when I was spry and young;
But poor Annie's love alone
Keeps my mind in proper tone,
And tho' my spirit mayn't be strong,
I'm lively—as the day is long."

As he spoke with half a yawn,
Half a smile, I saw the dawn
Creeping faint into the gloom
Of the quickly-chilling room.
On the hearth the wood-log lay,
With one last expiring ray;
Draining off his glass of grog,
Clewson rose and kick'd the log;

As it crumbled into ashes,
Watched the last expiring flashes,
Gave another yawn and said,
"Well! I guess it's time for bed!"
